At first glance, it seems that the game is an ordinary online arena with an endless number of analogs on Google Play, but this is not the case. The project focuses on short battles, there is no plot here, but due to its peculiarities and nuances, it is unique. Instead of living shooters, you have to fight drones and combat cyborgs, each of which specializes in specific battle tactics. Please note that CyberSphere developers implemented the multiplayer modes here quite cleverly. To enter online mode, you must be on the same local network with those with whom you want to play. Due to constant complaints from players, the developers decided to release a separate version of the monitored project with the postscript "Online" in the title.
